

Launch

To launch this topic, the children will be visiting Redhill Fire Station to find out how the staff there help people in our local community.

Who will I meet in Winton?

Landing

The children will create thank you cards to send to people who work in our community, to thank them for all they do to help us.

Topic Overview

In this topic, the children will talk about members of their immediate family and community. They will use simple maps of the local area to identify where different facilities are located e.g. post office, library. They will name and describe the work of people who are familiar to them, including shop staff, police officers, teachers and nurses, and think about how these roles help others. The children will have the opportunity to meet people with different occupations and find out more about their roles in our local community and why it was that they chose these careers. They will be visited by a nurse and a post office worker, as well as police officers who will show them how their police car works. As a class, the children will read fiction and non-fiction texts about different occupations and take part in role play to develop their understanding of these jobs.

There are many people who help us in our community, but they help us in different ways. Some people help us in an emergency, some people help us to stay safe and healthy and others help us each day.
